I suggest when you next speak to Mr. Horsley, or write , you bring to his attention that I am aware of cases against Coroners for insufficiency of inquiry if he is not allowing the statements of [Code A] etc. at the inquest and relies entirely on oral evidence Page. 133” Inquests “John Cooper QC (25 Bedford Row) which has an introduction by the Lord Chief Justice of England – in addition the report by Livesley. Ford’s report and Black’s gives me the impression of incompetence – with Ford’s understanding that my mother was in the Queen Alexandra Hospital – a complete hash of his understanding of the drug charts or that the House Doctor for Gosport came from a neighbouring hospital – the Doctors for Gosport came from Barton’s surgery. As for Black – words fail me but they will not at the inquest. I am also aware of the ruling re. exceptional funding and the Attorney-General’s Fiat by virtue of the Coroners Act 1988 Section 13 and the implications of the Corners Act 2009. Exceptional funding can cover additional expert medical opinion called by bereaved families. The comments and drug charts in Ford’s and Black’s reports are inaccurate. I will go into more detail within the next few days – I think you should make Tooks aware of my attitude - I am very concerned that the case has not as yet been written up. Gillian PS There is a great deal of emphasis on the participation of families under the 2009 Act. I am not going to allow one item of law to be overlooked .
