Just what I would expect from any agency associated with our present government. No doubt you are all scared of being sued.

You cannot take away the fact that Dr. Barton was incompetent, arrogant and did not carry out her duties according to the hippocratic code. As my mother was also in the War Memorial hospital and subsequently died there in the past five years, all treatment and drugs administered were discussed with her and with me and the implications of the said drugs were made plain to us. This was not the case with my aunt and as has been pointed out many times, she had been given an overdose of diamorphine. I appreciate that being an old lady she might not have had many more years to live but no one had the right to even take away a few days of her life let alone longer. The war memorial hospital at the time was appallingly run and a disgrace to the national health service.

Not one of us who has contributed to the national health service all our lives deserves to meet with such a doctor, she after all works for us, not us for her.
